

In my opinion, Barack Obama as President can make the United States a better place. He is making history because he is the first African-American to run for President. Obama makes good points about why he should be President and how he can change the United States. He will make a lot of difference to the United States. Obama can make change for people who have asked for it. He hears the people. He should be President because he won't make us have school on Saturdays. He understands why we shouldn't go to school on Saturday. And he even looks right to be President And he makes good decisions about change.
