

This year is a very different and amazing year because the first woman, Hillary Clinton and the first African-American, Barack Obama were running to become the nominee for President for the Democratic Party. Now, Obama and John McCain are fighting and trying their best to become President of the United States of America. Obama was born on August 4, 1961, in Honolulu, Hawaii. He graduated from Columbia University and Harvard Law School where he served as President of the Harvard Law Review. McCain was born on August 29, 1936. McCain graduated from the U.S Naval Academy, and he served in the Vietnam War. Now, it's the decision United States citizens to decide who will become President. I think the President should be Obama because it will be wonderful to have the first African-American running and win. My opinion is that it will be better for him to win because the skin of your color or where you and your relatives come from will not matter anymore. I hope Obama becomes our next President.

Zarait Deleon, 8th Grade, Junior Academy, Raul Yzaguirre School For Success, Houston, Texas