

In my opinion, I think Barack Obama will be an excellent President for the United States because he listens to people and he requests good things for the community. He will also help all of the immigrants in the United States. He has been nominated by his Democratic Party. He will make a lot of history if he gets elected because he would be the first African-American to be President. I'm glad he is going to bring all of the soldiers who went to Iraq back home because a lot of people have died fighting there. He chose Joe Biden as his Vice Presidential running mate. I hope Obama gets elected for President.
