

I'm not old enough to vote, but if I could, I would vote for Barack Obama. He would actually be the first African-American President in the history of the United States. I think he would change the way the Government is by making it better, and that's good for us because he can even change the way we live. He would make it much better. I also think people would think he's cool because he's young. And it's not just the way he talks and gives speeches. He just sounds like a good person. I just hope he gets to be our new President. I think he would treat us the right way instead of just doing things other people tell him to do only for money. I say this because that's what some of the candidates do. They just try to be President just so they can get money. But like I said before, I don't think Obama would be rude and selfish. I think he would do the opposite, he would help people with needs. I'm sure he would use some of the money he gets to help people that need help and maybe he would even donate to hospitals. He sounds like the perfect President for us. I would vote for him for sure!
