

Barack Obama will change the world while helping others, and he will change the United States. He will have to be a good leader in order to be President. He has been nominated by his Party, and several states approve of him as a good leader for the United States. He will be the first African-American President if elected. Also I think Obama will succeed as a good President, and I support him. He will give money to help some families who are struggling and in need of help. No matter who wins the election, there will be White House history. Democrats have a reputation for raising taxes, and Obama will do that to small businesses, but only if you make more than $250k a year.

Jonathan Pena, 7th Grade, Junior Academy, Raul Yzaguirre School For Success, Houston, Texas