

Barack Obama would be a good President because he has a good heart, and he has a wife and family so I know nothing bad could happen. I really like him because he makes good speeches, and he is a very good-hearted person. He has a very cool and strong personality. I love Obama's wife and his kids, and I hope that he makes it as President so that everyone could be happy. I believe that he would say and do more than the current President.
