

Barack Obama is the first African-American candidate for the Presidency of the United States. I think he would be a good President because he is going to help all the immigrants who don't have sufficient money to live here because they can't find a job without documents. Maybe he will do something to cut down the gas prices, and that will be a good idea because some people have economic problems, and they can't pay that much money. If I could vote, I would vote for Obama.
