

Computers are part of our daily lives with out you even noticing. They have been part of history for a long time, and we have been using them in so many ways. Today, we even use them for almost everything!

One can use them for various purposes. One of them is history. History is one of the main topics in research today, and computers are very useful when we talk about it. One main reason is because it's easy to find, ofcourse, with the help of the Internet. Just only imagine having thousands of history books in one small box! Also computers are very useful because all the information you could possibly get is just at your fingertips.

Most importantly, computers do not only help us in history, but they have been part of history for a long time. Computers have been very important in our daily lives, and they are also very useful in helping us understand in a very special way.

Lucia Garfias, 7th grade, Raul Yzaguirre School For Success