

This picture shows all the flowers connected to each other like if they're family. You can see all those little stems put together. They're a pretty color that I really like, and they're of course the shape of a circle. You can see the light shine on the very top flower. It looks like it stands out. These flowers are just like best friends hanging out on a hot spring or summer day. They're family, and family is very important not just to me, but maybe also to these flowers. If I were to know a person who could draw this, I'd go crazy. I would do everything I could to make this artwork famous.

When I see this picture, I feel happiness surrounding this flower. It is a beautiful red color. It's very pretty to me. It's one of my favorite colors. It also looks like three stars stacked on top of each other. This is like one of those flowers that a boyfriend or husband gives to his girlfriend or wife on Valentine's Day. This flower reminds me of when I was in Mexico. I was about two years old, and my grandmother had a full garden of roses. It was so beautiful. Every time I see roses, they remind me of what my grandmother and grandfather used to tell me. They always told me that the flowers bloom just to come, and see me on my birthday.

This picture is really pretty. It's like a flower just starting to bloom. What I like most about this picture is the red color of the flower. It's really pretty, by the way. This flower is just like the one my mom has that my little sister gave to her for Mother's Day. It's one of my mom's favorite kinds of flowers. She said that one of the reasons that my sister and her like these flowers so much is because they were the kinds of flowers at my little sister's first birthday party.
